

Journal of Hospital Medicine

How To Participate in #JHMChat

About the Chat

Each month, our team selects a recently published Journal of Hospital Medicine (JHM) article and prepares thought-provoking questions for an hour-long conversation among hospital medicine professionals across X (formerly known as Twitter).

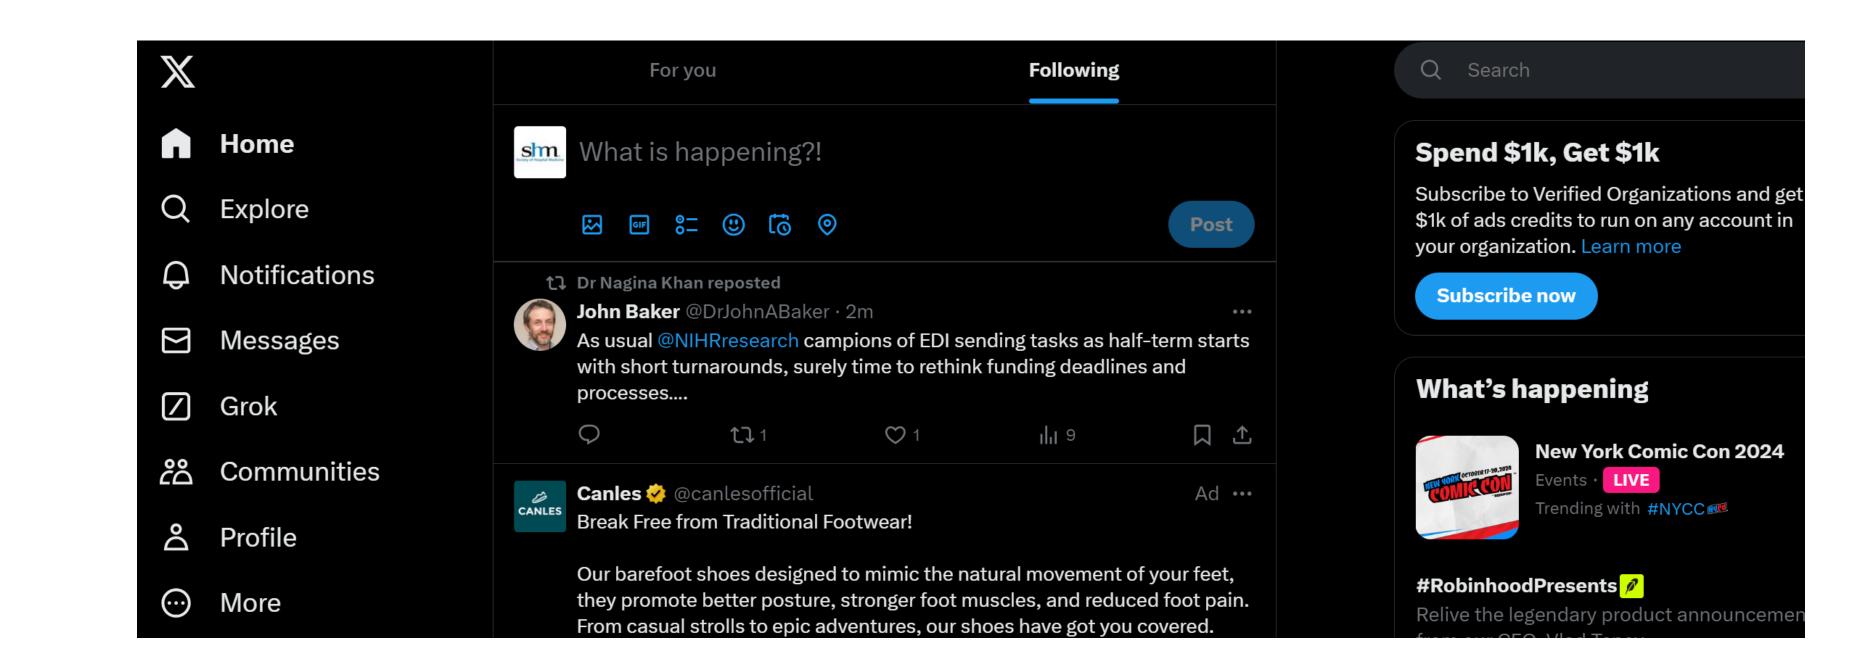

Led by a moderator, with the help of guest expert(s), #JHMChat fosters engagement and creates a sense of community for all participants. No matter how long you have been a member of the healthcare community or been active on X (formerly known as Twitter), you are welcome to join!

Chats typically take place monthly at 9 p.m. ET on Monday evenings, with a short summer break from June through August, and short winter break in December.

Join the Chat

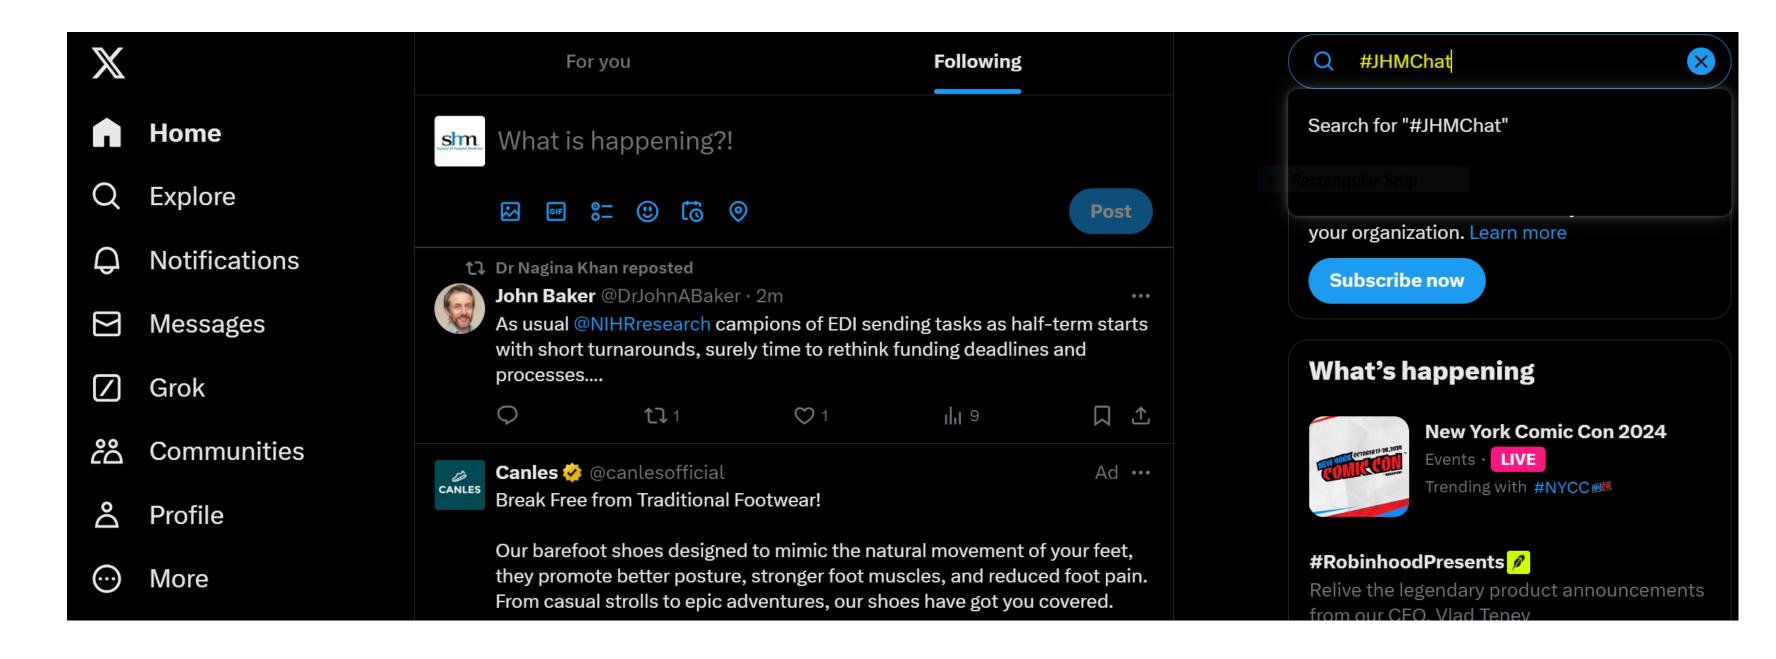

Log on to x.com

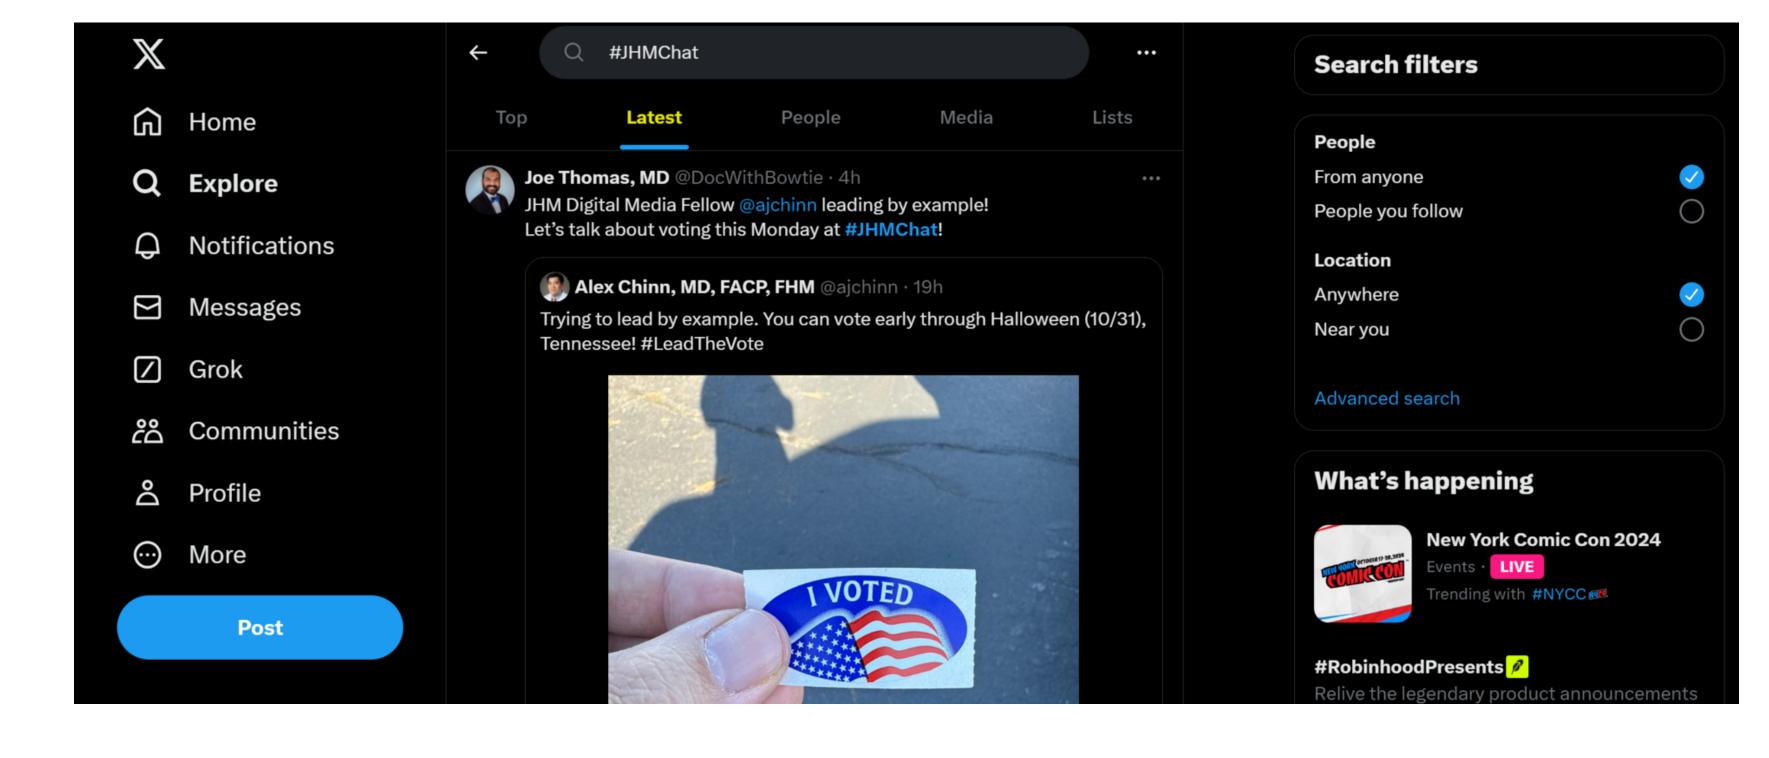

2

Type "#JHMChat" into the search bar and hit enter.

3

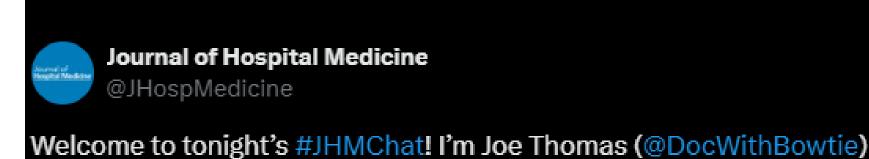

At the top of your screen, click "Latest" to see new posts corresponding to the #JHMChat as they are published.

...

≏

≏

Л

4

At 9 p.m. ET, the chat will begin. The #JHMChat moderator will post an ice breaker to introduce yourself and 4 discussion prompts throughout the hour. and I'll be behind @JHospMedicine as your moderator. Let's start with introductions, and tell us about your favorite 2024 Olympic moments!

Don't forget to use hashtag #JHMChat on your replies/posts so we see them!

#JHMChat

The tension in transition: Moving from trainee to hospitalist

Introductions/Icebreaker: Say hello and introduce yourself! What was your favorite Olympic moment from last month?

9:00 PM · Sep 23, 2024 · 1,347 Views

C Respond to the prompts using the #JHMChat hashtag and by starting your reply with the letter "A", for answer, and the number of the question

you are answering. In this example, it is A1.

#JHMChat

The tension in transition: Moving from trainee to hospitalist

Q1: If you're smart, you surround yourself with smarter people. How did you find someone to be on your collaborative team?

	Q 9	1,3	V 2	 1.4K
2	Maha Sulieman @MahaArhait	Ì

A1 #JHMChat Be open to learning about people; what you think you know might not truly reflect who they are.

5

 \square

9:19 PM · Sep 23, 2024 · 156 Views

t] 1

Q

6

Feel free to engage with other participants as responses begin to populate. (Make sure to include the #JHMChat hashtag on all posts to be part of the conversation.) While the conversation naturally progresses with each question, feel free to answer any previous

Post

Journal of Hospital Medicine @JHospMedicine · Sep 23 ··· #JHMChat Q1: If you're smart, you surround yourself with smarter people. How did you find someone to be on your collaborative team?

#JHMChat

The tension in transition: Moving from trainee to hospitalist

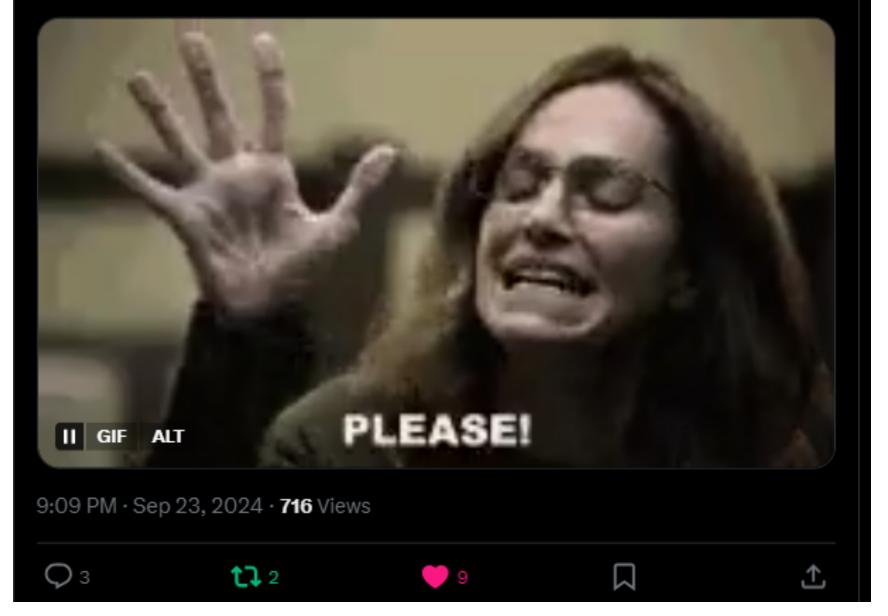

Q1: If you're smart, you surround yourself with smarter people. How did you find someone to be on your collaborative team?

Rachel Peterson @MPAcadHosp

A1: #JHMChat @JHospMedicine

Definitely identifying those individuals who share your values, and are willing to tell you hard truths.

So important in transition to hospitalist when getting real feedback can be crucial!

questions or posts as you please. Appropriate GIFS, emojis, and memes are highly encouraged!

Have questions? Email communications@hospitalmedicine.org.

How To Participate in #JHMChat

Society of Hospital Medicine

Journal of Hospital Medicine